Mr H. K. Pomroy
and Mssrs Pomroy Brothers.

Gentlemen,

Referring to our conversation yesterday, in regard to the examinations made in your office of all Books, accounts & documents, by Mr McConnell, I give you these lines to certify ^{that I} not only ~~that~~ approve of your having enabled him to examine all these papers etc, but that Mr McConnell has made & conducted these examinations as my Counsel at my special request, in order that I might be verso properly advised by him in all respects touching my property interests, and you as my agents will please recognize him, as fully authorized by me to act as my counsel and adviser, until I shall find it necessary to advise you in writing to the contrary.

Very truly
(signed) Josephine Louise Newcomb

[Below is hand written in another hand]

This is a true copy of ^{the original} letter of the same date in Mrs. Newcomb's handwriting & signed by her & delivered to me on that date,

Editor's note

This letter is a handwritten copy of the letter sent to Mr. McConnell. However this copy was not handwritten by JLN. Rather, the handwriting appears to be that of Mr. Callender.
